Conflict Minerals Policy:

CDA InterCorp is committed to meeting or exceeding the requirements of the regulations of the Dodd-Frank act revision of 2010, and to making efforts to reduce the potential for violent conflict arising from the mining and trade of Conflict Minerals that support our supply chain.

Dodd-Frank §1502 passed in 2010 and was implemented in 2013. This act leverages securities law to require all public companies to trace the source of Conflict Minerals within their supply chains, and to disclose same. Conflict minerals refers specifically to tin, tantalum, tungsten and gold (or “3TG”), regardless of source, processing, or point of sale. Dodd-Frank §1502 is essentially an effort to reduce violence and human rights abuse related to the sourcing of Conflict Minerals in “Covered Countries.” Those Covered Countries are Angola, Burundi, Central African Republic, Republic of the Congo, Rwanda, South Sudan, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zambia.

To effect positive change, CDA InterCorp is specifically committed to these actions to the extent possible:

- Work to identify Conflict Minerals in our supply chain;
- Develop processes to identify the origin of any Conflict Minerals in our supply chain;
- Flow down Conflict Minerals requirements throughout our supply chain;
- Prepare any appropriate disclosures regarding Conflict Minerals in our supply chain;
- Work to ensure we buy any Conflict Minerals from a Reasonable Country of Origin;
- Ensure new product and process designs are free of Conflict Minerals where reasonable alternatives exist.
